Tips for Choosing the Right Stain Color

1. Consider Your Home's Style

- Choose a stain color that complements your overall interior design. For modern homes, gray and cool tones work well, while traditional spaces often pair beautifully with medium and dark stains.

2. Test Stain Samples

- Always test a few stain samples on your red oak flooring. The wood's natural grain and undertones can influence how the color looks once applied.

3. Think About Lighting

- Natural and artificial lighting can change the appearance of stain colors. Test stains in the actual space where the flooring will be installed.

4. Maintenance Needs

- Dark stains can show scratches and dust more prominently, while lighter stains are easier to maintain in high-traffic areas.
